temple. If you could go on a trip,
where would you like to go?

Loft (4-6 yrs)

When Jesus was a kid, what do you think he liked to do? Do you think he liked playing with his brothers and sisters?

Wonderground (1st-5th)

What do these passages tell you about Jesus? If you could use one word to describe Jesus, what would it be?

PRAY

Opening Door Prayer

Gather at the front door of your home. Open the door and pray:
This is a new day that's never been before.

This is a new year...
the opening door.

We welcome you Jesus.

We welcome you in.

Into our neighborhood, our house, our family,
our friendships, our work &
our play,

Come into our thoughts and
our hearts.

We find joy in your coming.

We open the door.

Amen

These commandments that I give you today are to be on your hearts. Impress them on your children. Talk about them when you sit at home and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up. DEUTERONOMY 6:6-8

CREATING A FAMILY CULTURE OF SERVICE

Jacob' Well Justice Coordinator, Emily Rietema, wrote this article for Youthfront Family!

Often we think of service as something to “add on” a few times a year—dropping off canned goods at Thanksgiving, or volunteering at Christmas. While those acts matter, they don’t necessarily shape our children into people who see service as part of everyday discipleship. A culture of service goes deeper. It means serving together becomes part of your family’s identity, woven into rhythms and rituals of life and relationships.

When we serve as a family, we are joining in God’s kingdom work—the ongoing story of love, reconciliation, and renewal that Jesus invites us into. Service isn’t only about helping others; it’s about participating in the love of God that is already present and at work in the world.

An important part of family service is remembering that it’s not one-directional. Too often, service is framed as us giving to those who lack. But the kingdom of God reveals something different: all people are made in God’s image, with gifts to share. Instead of focusing on what’s missing, we ask: What strengths, gifts, and resources are already present here? This mirrors the truth that God’s Spirit is already alive in every neighborhood. For example, instead of saying, “We’re going to feed people who are hungry,” say: “We’re going to share a meal with neighbors. God will be with us at the table.” Or, instead of, “We’re helping kids who don’t have much,” try, “We’re going to play, laugh, and learn with new friends.”

Families often discover that they walk away with as much as they gave: a preschooler learns new words in Spanish from a new friend; an elementary child learns soccer tricks from refugee kids; a teen discovers shared music tastes with someone they served alongside.

When kids grow up seeing service not as charity but as part of community, they learn that they are not rescuers—they are neighbors. They discover that every person has dignity and something to offer. And they begin to understand that the kingdom of God is revealed most fully when we come together across differences, each giving and receiving, each learning from the other.
